To add text to a picture, choose the type of text you want. Place the type where you want it to appear, and then press Enter or click the type as you go. You can use any kind of text, as long as it's embedded in the type. For example, a tag for a listing, a stock image of a sign, or a headline. To remove text from a picture, select the text you want to remove by pressing the Ctrl (Windows) or Command (Mac) key on your keyboard and clicking the text, as shown in Figure 4-6. (If you select text that you don't want to remove, the text disappears.) You can use any kind of text, as long as it's embedded in the type. For example, a tag for a listing, a stock image of a sign, or a headline. FIGURE 4-6: Remove text by selecting it. You can use arrows to move the selection box in any direction around the text. You can use the Scroll tool to scroll through text or type, as described in the following steps: 1. Click to select the text or type that you want to move. As you work, you can use the Line tool to add or remove type from the selected type. 2. Use the scroll bar to move the selection box around the text. When you use the Line tool, it changes to a curved line that looks like a rubber band (see Figure 4-7). Press the arrow keys to move the rubber band until it surrounds the text that you want to remove. Click to remove the text. FIGURE 4-7: You can also use the keyboard to select text to delete. 3. If you want to add text to the picture, repeat the steps in Steps 1 and 2. The process is basically the same for adding text to a picture. Just press the Command key and click the type that you want to add. If you want to use the Shift key to add text to a picture, you must click outside the selection area and press the Ctrl/Option key and then click the type that you want to add. When you use the Line tool, it changes to a curved selection box that looks like a rubber band (see Figure 4-8). Press the arrow keys to move the rubber band until it surrounds the text that you want to remove. Click to

Tuesday, February 23, 2015 Yes. Her. The one with the BlackBerry and a child in tow has been all over the New York media for the past month. A major first-lady-come-lately, as it were. Mrs. Clinton is taking the answers she has given about her private server and her use of it to a new level, making her more ill-informed than ever about foreign policy. That's one of the main reasons she has appeared to have been written off as a potential major contender for the 2016 Democratic presidential nomination. Her husband famously called her "a paranoid schizophrenic, she sees conspiracy in everything." Whether or not she is, that is still a pretty accurate description of her. Read a little of this, and you can see how she missed the mark on the Iran deal and on ISIL, and has become increasingly erratic with the press, which, as we've seen lately, is like waving a red flag in front of a bull. Perhaps she is beginning to sense what the political and media establishment is going to do to her. 1. On Thursday, the New York Times reports that Mrs. Clinton found it so difficult to take the heat during the presidential primaries that she hired a former lobbyist and law partner to serve as her press secretary in 2000. This year, in a last-ditch effort to revive her flagging campaign, she tapped a longtime friend of the Clintons to replace Mills, the former aide who was famously dumped last year by Mrs. Clinton's husband, former President Bill Clinton. Why does this seem like a desperate move? Because for weeks now, Mrs. Clinton has been slipping, and not just because she is no longer viewed as having a serious chance to win the Democratic presidential nomination. Mrs. Clinton was a prepared, polished candidate in 2008. But since then, she has been erratic, erratic, erratic. Her "mistakes" have ranged from foreign policy fiascos to even more basic problems such as forgetting to list places she'd visited on her Senate and secretary of state confirmation hearings. Even by Washington standards, Mrs. Clinton is not consistent. She refuses to deal with or even acknowledge her major scandal, her use of a private server and her handling of classified material that may have put national security in jeopardy. If she were giving a college debate, she would be a candidate for the bottom of the barrel. On Friday in Iowa, Mrs. Clinton declared.

Q: Parsing XML elements with 'known' namespace into variables I'm trying to parse an XML file into variables in a PHP script. I'm working with a server that uses a different 'namespace' than the rest of the world for a particular XML element. I'd like to make this a little easier so I've written a very simple script to test out how I would go about doing this. I'm only interested in the main 'ns' element which is required in all other elements. Here is a simplified version of my XML file. Foo-1 Bar-2 Baz-3 Foo-2
